Where events take centre stage

Named after ATYP alumna and Ambassador Rebel Wilson, this modern amphitheatre is the meeting place of state-of-the-art technology and old-school theatre opulence.

Seating 180 patrons, it is as extroverted as its namesake—from the neon red Rebel sign at the box office to the striking ruby seating inside. Housed on the second floor of the Walsh Bay premises, the theatre is accessible by lift or via stairs through the stunning bar (also available for hire), where modern facilities complement welcoming features such as exposed wharf beams and rustic flooring.

The bar level features spectacular views of the Harbour Bridge from the indoor area and access to a generously proportioned outdoor balcony.

A professional studio environment featuring a dark, grid-patterned ceiling with multiple rows of bright, linear track lighting. Several professional spotlights are mounted on the grid. The walls are made of large, dark, rectangular panels, and a black curtain hangs in the background. In the lower-left corner, there is a black screen on a stand and a small metal equipment cart. The floor is dark and reflective.

The Popsy

The Popsy

Limited only by imagination

ATYP's most multi-purpose space, The Popsy, meets the technical specifications of a traditional black box theatre, but can be transformed into almost any configuration.

Located on the Wharf's first floor, clients can choose to flood this expansive and dramatic space with natural light or swathe it in complete darkness to make the most of the room's professional lighting grid. The Popsy also features a Juliet balcony ideal for filming, photography, or to discreetly house a lighting or sound deck away from the main space.

Hiring The Popsy also unlocks the potential to access a fully equipped kitchenette and breakout space adjacent to the room, which is ideal for staff and catering needs.

The Lab

Sydney Harbour's little wonder

A compact ground-floor venue perfect for small groups, The Laboratory (known as 'The Lab') opens out to a covered deck, boasting spectacular waterside views of Sydney Harbour, the iconic Bridge, and Luna Park.

It is incredibly versatile, allowing for a seated or standing indoor-outdoor experience. The mix of neutral modern finishes, exposed heritage features, and high ceilings gives a sense of space despite its modest dimensions.
